Course Description: Optic Precision and Maneuvers

Sept 25-26, 2025

This dynamic 2-day course is designed to enhance operator proficiency with red dot optics on rifles, focusing on intermediate and advanced techniques for engagements between 50 and 300 yards. Participants will learn to understand and adapt to the ballistic performance of their rifles, refining their skills in realistic and challenging live-fire environments. The course emphasizes practical application, including mastering the trajectory of bullets at varying distances and maintaining accuracy while adapting to unconventional shooting positions such as prone, sitting, and kneeling. Participants will also develop techniques for engaging targets from behind barricades and utilizing cover effectively in operational scenarios.

Through high-intensity drills, operators will practice managing stress during live engagements, incorporating physical movements and breathing techniques to maintain precision under pressure. The course further explores shooting from non-traditional rifle orientations, enabling participants to adapt when environmental constraints prevent standard positioning.

Designed for military, law enforcement, and professional operators, this course equips participants with the skills and confidence to perform in real-world scenarios where precision, adaptability, and efficiency are critical.
