Venue: Greenville PD Range
Greenville, TX 75402

Price: $750

Instructors: Matt Pranka
Jake Labhart

Course Description:

Xray Alpha and In Extremis Performance team up for three days of training combining high performance shooting with human performance focusing on the application for law enforcement special operations. Incorporating movement into range training that is designed to set officers up for success with the application of their most critical point of performance, when they can't be wrong, is where current law enforcement training needs to go. Officers will undergo human performance testing and evaluation of movement sequences to give them the tools necessary to develop longevity at high levels of performance. Xray Alpha and In Extremis Performance will then combine this with a practical approach to shooting that emphasizes accountability, control, and performance. The application of skills in reality is fast and evolving, and specific to each individual situation. This course is designed to give officers tools that are necessary to train at this level and develop in the future. Equipment is Duty Carbine and pistol, Range belt with rifle and pistol magazine carriers. Water and food is highly recommended and students should dress for the weather. Day one students will need PT gear, day 2 and 3 will be range attire. Round Count is 1000 pistol, 750 Rifle.
